SAYS SHE WILL LIVE AND DIE AMONG LEPERS.

Woman Who Declares That She Was Healed by Prayer Will Devote Life to Missionary Work.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Philadelplin, Jan. 2-Miss Zella Z.

McAuley of Oil City has sailed for Bombay to engage in missionary work among the lepers. Not only is the circumstance that a cultivated young woman should leave home and friends on such a mission un-usual, but so, too, is the reason assigned

Miss McAuley was as active as most

Miss McAuley was as active as most children until 8 years of age. She then began to be troubled with a weakness which suggested curvature of the spinal column. Competent medical skill was empleyed, and, for a time, no serious developments took place.

By the time she was ready to enter the High School, however, she suffered so much pain that she was advised to give up study—which she did at the end of the first year. But the circumstances of the family were such that she felt she must do something and she, therefore, took up music teaching, in which she was remarkably successful.

At this she continued, despite much suf-

Plaster-of-paris fackets were recommended, and no less than twenty-one were made for her within a period of eight years. The long months between May, 1886, and October, 1886, she grew gradually worse. She was in hospitals both in Pittsburg and Oil City. She found herseelf at last in the Pittsburg Home for Incurables. And yet, through it all, Miss McAulev held firmly to the belief that she would yet recover.

held firmly to the belief that she would yet recover.

She was a devout Christian and gradually grasped the thought that she might be healed in answer to prayer. So firmly did she become fixed in this that she resolved to leave the home and take up her residence at an establishment maintained by a number of "faith healers."

When she announced her purpose she was so weak that it was doubtful if she could live through the act of removal. For a full year she had not been able to sit up in bed. The removal was made, however.

Two days later a company of believers, headed by Miss Emma Kerr, now a missionary in India, were engaged in prayer for her healing, when suddenly she sat up in bed and shouted in a loud tone that she was well.

She declared, and still asserts, that the scheatlon experienced was like an electric shock—sharp, clear, unmistakable.

All pain left her, and she had no use for pillows, bolsters or headrest. On the next day but one she sat up in a chair without assistance, and on the following day the piaster lacket was taken off.

May 5 she was able to walk about the building and within a week could walk on the streets.

ADDRESS SENT ON REQUEST. Case of Girls Who Proposed to Governor Bailey Not Hopeless. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 3.—Events which have occurred during the last week have literally transferred the office of W. J. Balley, Governor elect. Into a marriage bureau. When it became known throughout the country that Mr. Balley had not selected a wife from the large number of ladies who had proposed to him. a number of young men began writing him, asking him for addresses of some of the young women who had proposed to him.

H. J. Bone, private secretary to the Governor, saw in these requests a chance to help a large number of young persons of hoth sexes, and he began sending the addresses of the women to the young men who applied.

The first letters from the young men came from Providence, R. I., and from there the requests spread until they are now coming from almost all the other States. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Mr. Bailey is taking no hand in the man-agement of the marriage bureau, but he be-lleves the course adopted by his private secretary is one which will do a great deal of good. The private secretary answers the requests of only the young men who ap-pear to be sincere and anxious to get mar-ried.

Decatur, Ill., Jan. 3.—A legal contest over a 7-year-old girl, involving attorneys from three counties, is being heard in the Circuit Court here to-day. Mrs. Nellie Prather of Winchester, Ill., asks on order on her divorced husband, John E. Prather of Effingham, to turn over to her their 7-year-old daughter, Inea. She claims that when they separated, it was agreed that she should have the daughter, but when the child went to visit the father he would not let her come back.

Several witnesses are here from Effingham and Winchester, with attorneys for both sides. Three Decatur atorneys have been engaged to assist the outside lawyers. The hearing will occupy two days. to send the drafts on approval if they didn't cure. arrives in New York and Begins at Once on Execution of His New Duties.

OPPORTUNITY FOR AMERICANS.

Expects the Collaboration of the Best Element of the Profession in This Country-He Is to Have a Free Hand.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. New York, Dec. 3.-Carl E. T. Bitter, the ew Director of Sculpture of the St. Louis World's Fair, returned from the World's Fair City yesterday and began in earnest to-day on the work of carrying out his

"It looks as if there was a splendid op-"It looks as if there was a splendid op-portunity for American sculpture pre-sented in the coming Exposition," said Mr. Eitter to-day. "The funds seem sufficient, and, although the time is short, still a great deal can be accomplished in a year and a half. I hope to have the enthusiastic col-laboration of the best element of the pro-fession in this country to bring the under-taking to a success worthy of our nation. resson in this country to bring the undertaking to a success worthy of our nation.
"The fact that such sculptors as St. Gaudens, Ward and French will advise me is a guaranty of a large measure of success."

Mr. Bitter is to have a free hand, not Mf. Fitter is to have a tree hand, he only in the general design, but in the execution of his entire scheme of decoration. It is his intention to secure the best available sculptors in the country, and not confine himself to any particular body of artists.

fine himself to any particular body of artists.

To artists and others who have the progress and welfare of art in this country at heart the most gratifying news to be derived from the preliminary plans for the St. Louis Fair is that a considerable part of the appropriation for sculpture over one-quarter of the total amount) will be expended on works in permanent mediums—that is, in bronze and marble. These pieces will consist of the statues, friezes, groups and other adornments of the Fine Arts building, which will be a permanent structure.

SCHEMES OF DECORATION.

The central theme upon which Mr. Bitter will rear his general structure, of course, will be a commemoration and celebration of the Louisiana Purchase. Its development and effect on our civilization will be traced by significant periods in various statues, figures and groups.

This scheme will reach its climax in a great triple fountain and cascades, intended to be the most notable symbolic and decorative feature of the Exposition. It will be directly in the front of the Fine Arts building, which will be situated on an elevation overlooking the entire grounds. From the height on which this building will stand water obtained from the Mississippi will fall in a big, splashing cascade to a large basin, and thence to the canals and lagoons that will form a subsidiary feature of the beautifying of the grounds.

A colonnade about the basin will show fourteen figures of colossal size, representing the fourteen States which hage been cut from the territory acquired by the purchase.

Of the three branches of the cascade, the SCHEMES OF DECORATION.

of the three branches of the cascade, the center one will be made to represent Liberty, while those to either side will have the Atlantic and Pacific occans, respectively, as their subjects, the lidea of the conception being shown that, by the purchase the sway of Lib.rty was extended from sea to

However, I happen to have made your query the subject of recent investigation, and I can give you an answer which will be approximately correct. The amount of stationery used by the different departments is enormous, so much so that if I am a rew hundred gress more or less out of the way from the official figures it will make little difference. It is intended that these cascades shall be to the St. Louis scheme of decoration what the Court of Honor was to the Chicago

the Court of Head fair,

Two important symbolic figures will be a monument commemorating the Louisiana. Purchase, to be erected at an intersection of the main avenues leading to the cascades, and visible from all points, and a great figure at the entrance to the grounds—an apotheosis of the city of St. Louis.

Sally's cousin saw the Loskeys at Proctor's Theater. She told her uncle she had seen Sally on the stage.

Mr. Purisch haunted the stage entrance of the theater all that week, but was not permitted to see the girl. Detective Gargan learned that when they left Proctor's they played at Keith's in Philadelphia for a week. They went to Hoboken. Detective Gargan arranged to take the old folks, with an interpreter, to the theater.

At the entrance was a large frame, containing half a dozen pictures of the Loskeys. Mr. and Mrs. Purisch scrutinized these, and were certain they were of their little daughter. They were permitted by the stage manager to wait behind the scenes until the girl could be brought to them, only to be disappointed.

Friends of the family say they have seen Sally several times. Once she was supposed to have been seen on a bicycle in Madison Square and again in a dry goods store.

Is Suffering From Three Distinct Growths of Cancer.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
San Francisco, Jan. 2.—With death from cancer threatening him, E. J. Baldwin, better known as "Lucky" Baldwin, has been lying in a private room in this city since the day after Christimas, but his identity has been hidden under the assumed name of Edward Jackson. His family and immediate friends have been calling on him. Mr. Baldwin is suffering from three distinct growths of cancer. The most scrious of these is in the middle of the lower lip. The others are under the chin.

Dector S. R. Chamley, who has the case in hand, expressed the belief to-day that he would be able to let the patient go to his home in about a week.
